

AQUALOGY EXPLAINS ITS PROJECT ON THE OCCASION OF THE G8 SUMMIT

The most important contents to be discussed at the G8 summit held in June in the United Kingdom have been published in the G8 magazine 'helping global trade to take off', which also includes a report on Aqualogy which explains the brand's commitment to global water challenges.

Aqualogy shares these pages with several important figures, such as the United Kingdom prime minister, David Cameron, the US president, Barack Obama, the French president, François Hollande, and the European Commission president, José Manuel Barroso, who reflect on the challenges to restore strong and sustainable growth to the world economy.

The G8 is the group of the world's industrialized countries with very important global political and economic influence. This group is formed by Germany, Canada, the United States, France, Italy, Japan, the United Kingdom and Russia.

You can find the article on Aqualogy on page 178:
